Humpty Dumpty sat on a wall.
He sat in a lounge-chair, he sat in the mall.
He sat everywhere, did our little Humpty.
But try as he might, he couldn't get comfy.

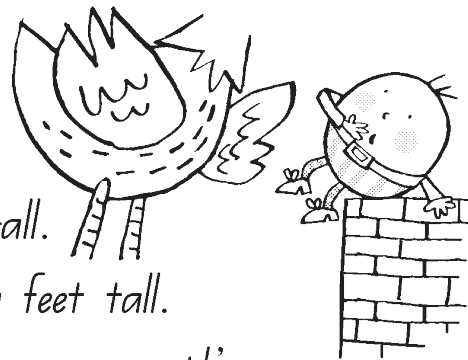

Humpty Dumpty had a car.
He drove it near, he drove it far.
He went to drive it round a bend.
Oh - he crashed and that's the end.

Humpty Dumpty sat in a chair,
While the barber cut his hair.
He cut it long. He cut it short.
He cut it with a knife and fork.

Humpty Dumpty sat on the mat.
Humpty Dumpty lost his cat
He looked in the tree, he looked in the house.
And there was the cat chasing a mouse.

Humpty Dumpty sat on the wall.
Along came a hen, over twenty feet tall.
'Humpty,' she cried. 'You gave me no rest!
I'm your mum, now come and get back in the nest.'
