Hats

In Australia, we have many different cultures living together. It is important that we learn about each other, so that we understand and live together respectfully. Just because someone wears a different hat or head covering doesn't mean they don't belong.

We also need to learn about special objects, such as hats worn long ago, so we don't forget about them. Some of the hats in the following pictures are worn today, and others are very old or only used on special occasions.

There is science even in old hats.
